TURBBAY MORNOG, APRIL 99, 1889. What Ohio Did for the Border States.

In another column we publish, under the land outle Bev. Dr. Brecklaridge and the Loyal Sorth," an article from the Ohio State Journal, to which we ask attention. It possesses mor much interest as a history of the earlier days of the rebellion on our border, and the manner in which it was met and baffled. The loyal people of Western Virginia have often expressed their gratitude to Ohio for the suc-proming need, and the glowing enlogy of Dr. Breekinridge to the Cherole levalty of the free States" is but the voice of Kentucky turning in thankfulness to the deliverers of the State from rebel exurpation and control We of Northern Ohio, are already familiar with the promptness of some of our Western Reserve troops in going to the rescue of Western Virginia. On the Gunday following the publication of the President's Procismation calling for troops, the Geneva Light Artillery, Captain D Kenney, were notified by talegraph to report at Columbus immediately. The order was received whilst most of the men were at Church, engaged in worship. Hastily they willndrew from the hous? of God, called a meeting of the Battery, enlisted a few men to fill vacancies occasioned by sickness and absence of members, and ere they slept, were ready to take the field-Monday morning they were borne through Phillippi they fired the first gun of the campaign, the echoes of which, ringing through may to the rebellious and brought assurance > orn Virginia. After treason, in the guise of neutrality, had well righ succeeded in enveloping Kenmony in its snaky coil, the defenceless Union mon of that State appealed to Ohie and Indians for aid It was promotly given, and Kentacky is saved to the Union.

Not alone to the soldier is due the credit of these grand achievements. He did his duty-fought nobly, and victory crowned his efforts; but it was necessary that some oneshould make the call which took him so exrly to the field, and no less necessary that the proper arms, uniform, ammunition and march our whole army into that region, and equipments should be provided at the proper | eiving battle to the enemy at as distant a time. These duties devolved upon the Gov. ernors of the States, and that they performed them well is shown by the results. Western tribution of the State regiments along the Virginia and Kentucky, reclaimed and preperred to the Union speaks more in praise of Governors Dennison and Morton than words could possibly do, and to them, with the brave troops under their direction, his- ments were ordered to cross the river to tory will ascribe the credit of driving the meet them. This they did in the most galrebellion back from the border and preventine a military campaign, with all its evils, and In north of the Ohio river.

But, on the other hand, you must never forget, for an intant, that it was the heroic loyalty of the Free States that saved the nation. Kentucky would this day be a desolution but for the 00.000 Northern men who came to the aid of our 30,000 or 40,000 soldiers ready to periah before an overnowering host of trait The safety of the nation is weakened by every conception that there was any human power but the hernism of the North that sould have averted the fate prepared for it by a revolt such as no nation ever before sup-

Paithfully, your abliged friend and brother, R. J BRECKINGIDGE We believe that the above alognest and dowing compliment that the distinguished rein paid to the "heroic lovalty o he Free States," is but just, and was intended by the writer, not as a compliment merely, but as the grateful utterance of a sincer and bonest heart, such as Dr. Breck'nridge is known to be. And in this connection we deem it not inppropriate to allude to the course that our own State of Ohio pursued in relation to the sending of troops to Kentucky, and the adous results that ensued both to Kentacky and Obio, and eventually to the whole national cause; and which reflected so much credit to our State, and to the administration of Governor Dennison.

It is known that the Governor's policy was, from the opening of the war to strengthen the Union sentiment of Kentucky se much as possible; that he regarded that our city with the swiftness of steam, and, as almost the pivotal State in the final without even waiting to be mustered into settlement of the question as to the union of service, hastened to the scene of action. At all the slaveholding States in the rebellion and believed, that unless Kentneky could be kept out of the hands of the traiters, there was danger of the theatre of the war belog the hills and valleys of Virginia carried dis- transferred from the cotton and Mississippi States to the Ohio Valley. That such was a part of the rebel programme was even then announced by themselves, and subsequent cirnstances have fully confirmed their sincerity in this particular. And it may not h much to say, that in the helpless condition of Ohio for some time after the commencement of the war, from the want of sems, which no effort cou'd procure from the Government, or by nurchase, the enemy interce, provisioned by Kentucky, could have ionsly threatened, if not have actually in-
